Performance and Portfolio Comment – July 2022

Market overview

The ACWI ex Australia index rose 5.44% in July, when measured in Australian Dollars.

Equity markets staged a recovery rally in July, and in the US the S&P saw its highest rise since November 2020, despite economic data continuing to deteriorate. Economically sensitive parts of the market led the way with gains for the I.T., Consumer Discretionary and Industrials sectors. By contrast, Consumer Staples, Health Care and Communication Services sectors lagged. Inflation continued to accelerate across the world, however, markets increasingly priced in interest rate intervention from Central Banks. As anticipated, the Federal Reserve (Fed) hiked interest rates by 75 basis points (bps); however, chair Jerome Powell subsequently commented that the pace of policy tightening is likely to relent from here. And in Europe, high inflation pushed the European Central Bank (ECB) to deliver its first interest rate increase in over a decade, taking the eurozone out of negative rates. The continuing fears that Russia might shut off gas supplies to Europe has been driving much of the recent dramatic rise in oil prices, however high prices do reduce demand, and oil prices have retreated roughly 20% from their peak. Still, oil prices remain volatile. Wheat prices saw some relief, driven by an agreement between Russia and Ukraine to allow merchant ships to use their ports again, which is bringing back supply from two of the world's most important wheat producers. Market events in Japan were overshadowed by the assassination of the highly influential former Prime Minister Shinzo Abe. Economic data released in China was mixed, and problems in the property market continued to spread.

Performance overview

Over the past 12 months, the Fund has posted a total return gross of fees of -7.17% while the index fell -5.80%. In July, the Fund rose by 8.45%, outperforming the benchmark by 302bps.

Both stock selection and allocation over the month were positive, and the majority of the Fund's outperformance attributable to the stock selection effect. Stock selection within the Industrial sector made the strongest contribution, with two of the Fund's top five contributors (W.W. Grainger and Atlas Copco) hailing from this sector. Although two of the Fund's top five detractors came from Health Care, overall selection from this sector aided performance, however the Fund's long-standing overweight to the sector detracted. There was no negative stock selection from any of the eight sectors the Fund invests in, albeit the positive effect from stock selection in Consumer Discretionary and Financials was marginal. The overweight to I.T, which was the best performing sector over the month, contributed positively, as did stock selection.

From a regional basis, stock selection within Europe was the largest contributor, with the Fund's holdings in Switzerland, Sweden, France, United Kingdom and Norway leading the way. Allocation to Asia Pacific, along with stock selection boosted performance this month, with the Fund's Japanese holdings holding up well, assisted by the Fund's single holdings in India and Taiwan.

The top five stock contributors came from two sectors, Industrials and I.T, with four listed in the US and one in Sweden. The list was led by two industrial stocks, W.W. Grainger and the Swedish stock Atlas Copco. Also on the list were electrical interconnected products company Amphenol, the semiconductor manufacturer Analog Devices, and payments giant PayPal.

The top five detractors derive from three sectors. Financials, Health Care and I.T., and two domiciles the US and Hong Kong. This included the insurance solutions provider WR Berkley, hospital supplier Baxter International, the tech conglomerate Apple, Asian life insurers AIA Group and finally medical specialist Abbott Laboratories.

Dividends

There were three dividend announcements in the month of July. Marsh & McLennan is a diversified professional services conglomerate focused on insurance brokerage, business & investment consulting. Good brokerage volumes, strong pricing and innovation in cyber security has supported their pandemic recovery. The company announced a 10.3% increase in the quarterly dividend and the shares remain attractively valued. PPG Industries is one of the world's largest manufacturers and distributors of paints, coating and specialty materials. More than half of revenue is derived from maintenance of existing assets, providing a stable cash flow profile for growth, and announced a 5.1% increase in the quarterly dividend which is cautious but prudent given the economic uncertainty and high input cost inflation. Diageo is the world's largest manufacturer of whiskey, while having a large portfolio of other spirits. The business has performed well through the pandemic, and has accelerated through the reopening as consumers have been able to return to bars and restaurants. The weakening of reporting currency, GBP, has also been significant as a major source of profits in the U.S. spirits business. Diageo announced a 5% increase in the quarterly dividend.

Portfolio changes

There were no full sales or new investments made during July.
